

About VeriCor

VeriCor designs and builds mobile medical systems and products that are Response-Friendly®. Response-Friendly® means that they are complete, highly organized, labeled and color-coded so that everything is efficient, easy to manage and quick to deploy.

- From compact kits to field hospitals, systems enable safe medical care in the wake of disasters (e.g. pandemics, terrorist attacks, hurricanes).
- From phase-change material coolers to incident command trailers, products facilitate intuitive organization, safe operations and rapid response (e.g. clear pockets, consistent cold chain management, unique transport features).

VeriCor's roots are military medical. Before forming the company, VeriCor personnel designed, exercised and deployed combat support hospitals and trained forward surgical teams for departments of the Army and Army Reserve. This military experience is at the core of the philosophy and procedures used to design and build Response-Friendly® systems and products.
